Yahusha – The Pesach Lamb

Introduction

This booklet explores the life of Yahusha as the fulfillment of the Pesach Lamb. From His birth to His sacrifice, a continuous pattern emerges - one that aligns with the ancient instructions given in the Torah concerning the lamb of Pesach.

1. The Pattern Established in Exodus

The foundation of Pesach is found in Exodus 12. Each household was instructed to take a lamb without blemish, keep it, and then sacrifice it at the appointed time.

Key elements:

- A lamb without blemish
 - Set apart for a period
 - Publicly examined
 - Sacrificed at the appointed time

2. Birth of the Lamb

Yahusha's birth reflects humility and identification with the flock. He was not born into royalty as expected, but in a setting associated with animals and shepherds.

This aligns with the nature of a lamb - gentle, accessible, and among the people.

3. A Life Without Blemish

The requirement of the Pesach lamb was perfection - without blemish. Yahusha's life demonstrates obedience, discipline, and alignment with the will of the Father.

Throughout His ministry:

- He was tested
- He was questioned
- He was observed by leaders and authorities

Yet no fault could be established.

4. Public Examination

Before Pesach, the lamb was examined. In the same way, Yahusha was brought before religious and civil authorities.

Despite intense scrutiny:

- No wrongdoing was proven
- Testimonies conflicted
- Judgment was forced, not justified

5. The Appointed Time

Pesach is not random - it is appointed.

Yahusha's death aligns with this appointed time, reinforcing the pattern:

- Not early
- Not delayed
- Precisely on time

6. The Sacrifice

The lamb was sacrificed for deliverance. Its blood marked protection.

Yahusha's sacrifice follows this pattern:

- Voluntary
- Substitutionary
- Redemptive in nature

7. The Meaning of the Blood

In Exodus, the blood signified protection and separation.

In fulfillment:

- It represents covering
- It marks belonging
- It signifies covenant

8. From Shadow to Fulfillment

The Pesach lamb was a shadow - temporary and repeated.

Yahusha represents fulfillment:

- Complete
 - Final
 - Sufficient

9. Living as the Lamb

The pattern does not end at sacrifice. The life of the Lamb is also a model:

- Humility
 - Obedience
 - Submission
 - Faithfulness

10. Conclusion

The life of Yahusha cannot be separated from the Pesach pattern. He was not only the Lamb in death, but throughout His entire life.

From birth to sacrifice, the pattern remains consistent, revealing a complete and intentional design.

Final Reflection

Understanding Pesach through this lens transforms it from ritual into revelation. The Lamb is not only remembered - it is understood.
